The Chair appointed as a special committee, Senators Young and Glynn to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives, to work in conjunction with the State Plant Board, to consider Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 17, for the purpose of enacting appropriate legislation to combat the Mediterranean fruit fly.

The hour of adjournment having arrived, a point of order was raised and the Senate stood adjourned at 1:09 o'clock p. m., until 4 o'clock p. m., Monday, May 13, 1929.

In response to Senate Resolution No. 25, Senators Hodges, King and Taylor offered the following Resolution:

Senate Resolution No. 26:

Mother's Day

No one will ever be able to measure the depth and tenderness of a Mother's love or the service she has so ungrudgingly given to her children.

Mother's hands made with tenderest love the first dress
the baby ever wore;
Mother's kisses healed the bruised fingers and consoled
the aching heart of the child—only her sympathy could exile his pain;
She was the inexhaustible encyclopedia of universal knowledge for his opening mind;
She saw him with gladness and yet with fear go out into the world to engage in life's struggle; Wrinkles and gray hairs came upon her and her form bent
under the weight of years;
Business kept him from coming home as often as he wanted to return;
She yearned for his presence and watched down the dusty road with dimming eyes for him to come;
SHE was the first to look into his opening eyes and when her eyes were closing in death HIS image was the last thing she ever knew;
In childhood HE toddled after her wherever she went—In old age, broken with infirmities and the sorrows of many partings, wherever he went SHE tottered after him.
She lived her life for him—and "Greater love than this has no man shown."
To the Mothers still alive—we take them in our arms and give them that which they want most—our love.
We wear today the red carnation for the living Mothers;
To the Mothers who have folded their pale hands and closed their tender eyes on things earthly, we bow our heads in reverent love—
And for them
We wear today the white carnation of loving memory.

Senator Hodges moved that in compliance with the terms of the Resolution a page of the Senate Journal be set apart for the printing of the Resolution.

Which was read.

Mr. Hodges moved the adoption of the Resolution.

Which was agreed to.

And the Resolution was adopted.
