Our Heavenly Father: We approach Thy throne of grace and mercy with humble hearts this morning. We realize that thou art all wise, and Thou art able to impart to us today thy wisdom. Thou hast taught us in thy scriptures that "If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask God who gives to all men generously and without reproaching, and it will be given him." We come this morning, Our Father, claiming this precious promise from thy word. We pray that these men of the Senate may be directed by Thy Holy Spirit in their deliberations today. Give to each of them the necessary wisdom to accomplish the task set before them as Thou would have it accomplished. May they be enabled to finish the task. Bless our State, bless our Nation, and give to all of us as citizens the desire to please thee. Bless our absent loved ones. We ask all these things in the name of Jesus our Saviour. Amen.

Senator Mathews moved that the following statement issued by the Governor be spread upon the Journal.

Which was agreed to and it was so ordered.

“There will be no further message from me to the Legislature enlarging the subjects of legislation to be considered at this session.

“Most of the essential legislation has been passed, and I am confident the remainder will be completed in the time allotted.

“I hope and have reason to believe that the legislation now completed, or which will be completed, will provide sufficient revenue for the State Government to efficiently perform the necessary functions of government, and for the essential services and aid now being rendered.

“It is impossible for anyone to determine with certainty the amount of money the revenue bills will produce. This can only be determined from experience and actual operation of the laws.

“Many buildings at our state institutions are in a deplorable condition and our phenomenal growth makes the need for additional buildings acute. However, for the present, I reluctantly admit a building program must be postponed.

“It is gratifying to know that this session of the Legislature has provided for tuberculosis hospitals.

“Most of the members of the Legislature during this session have accepted and are continuing to accept their responsibility and perform their constitutional duty in raising revenue to meet the expenses of the State in a statesmanlike manner.”

Senator Beacham now presiding.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

The following explanation of vote was filed with the Secretary:

Explanation of my vote on House Bill No. 170-X('49) is well expressed in an Editorial in the Tampa Tribune of Saturday, September 24, 1949, as follows:

"THE LEGISLATIVE JOB

The Florida legislature, thanks to a resounding yes in the house, has struck at the root of the state's financial problems. In enacting the 3 per cent limited sales tax, a majority of legislators accepted their responsibility to provide the revenue needed to balance the budget, maintain essential services demanded by the people and provide for some capital outlays that are indispensable in the interest of public health and safety.

Oh yes, there are now, and will continue to be, some grumblings over the legislature's action. As this newspaper has commented right along, no one likes the idea of bearing an additional tax burden. The theory of most citizens is that if there are to be more taxes, the other fellow ought to be loaded with them; if any reduction, he should get the benefit of it.

But the legislature was confronted by a condition, not a theory. Florida's need for more revenue could not be denied, despite all the soundings and propoganda of the so-called "economy bloc." The limited sales tax may be called a "desperate resort," but it will at least have the virtue of restoring Florida governmental finances, including those of cities and counties, to a sounder basis.

With tax exemptions provided for food, medicines and low-cost clothing—the principal items in the poor family's budget—the burden of the tax will certainly not be great enough to warrant fears that living standards of low-income families will be drastically affected. Moreover, the tax for the so-called "poor family" will be paid a few pennies at a time.

True, that may bring criticisms about the nuisance. But there is the advantage in that it will make more Floridians tax-conscious. And who can say that is a bad thing?

As for the amount of revenue to be produced under the modernized tax program, we will have to wait and see. If Florida's experience corresponds with that of other states, the limited sales tax will yield more than original estimates.

ECONOMIES IN ORDER

In view of this probability, the legislature should give the most serious consideration to legislation designed to "freeze" revenue in excess of estimates to take care of commitments to be made by the 1951 legislature.

This is also the time for real spadework on measures designed to eliminate duplicating functions, combine all those examining boards and inspectors, reduce extravagance in operating expenses, establish a state tax commission to equalize assessments and consolidate all tax-collection functions. There is little time left in this special session. But if Governor Warren is really interested in cutting costs and increasing efficiency, he has only to give a go-ahead signal.

Admittedly, the job will be difficult. It will take courage, wisdom and stepping on some political toes to streamline our state government and get some real efficiency. But every effort made to bring about steady, businesslike management of the state's affairs will help to remove the sting from enactment of the limited sales tax and, at the same time, provide the needed tools for general state improvement and progress."
