ARTICLE III

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT

Section 1. Composition.—The legislative power of the state shall be vested in a Legislature of the State of Florida, consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, whose sessions shall be held at the seat of government.

Section 2. Regular sessions; extensions.—A regular legislative session shall be convened on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in April of each year for not more than forty-five consecutive days; provided by three-fifths vote of the membership of each house it may be extended from time to time for periods not exceeding in the aggregate thirty calendar days, not necessarily consecutive but not extending beyond the following August, during which no new legislation may be introduced without the consent of two-thirds of the membership of the house in which it originates.

Section 3. Extra sessions; call by legislature.—When within sixty days from the filing of the first statement one-fifth of the membership of each house of the legislature shall have filed with the secretary of state their statements that an extra session of the legislature is required for the common good, he shall within seven days thereafter give notice thereof to all legislators by registered mail and poll them on the question: "Shall such session be held?" If three-fifths of the membership of each house shall within fifteen days after such mailing file with him their affirmative votes thereon, he shall call such session to convene on a date fixed by him not less than fourteen nor more than twenty-one days after such mailing. Such session shall not exceed thirty consecutive days.

Section 4. Special Sessions; call by governor.—The governor may by proclamation, stating the purpose, convene the legislature in special session not to exceed twenty consecutive days, during which only such legislative business may be transacted as is within the purview of the proclamation or of a communication from the governor, or is introduced by consent of two-thirds of the membership of each house.

Section 5. Organization; expenses.—The legislature may provide for its organization, expenses, and other incidental matters.

Section 6. Terms of legislators; vacancies.—Each representative shall be elected for a term of two years and, except as otherwise provided in Article VII hereof, each senator for a term of four years, by electors of the county or district within which he qualifies, at a general election held in the year in which the term of the incumbent expires. He shall take office upon election. Vacancies shall be filled only by special election as provided by law.

Section 7. Qualifications of legislators.—Each legislator shall be at least twenty-one years of age and be an elector and resident of the county or district from which elected. If he fails to maintain such residence during his term of office his seat shall become vacant.

Section 8. Eligibility for other office.—Except as provided herein, no legislator shall during the term for which elected be appointed to any appointive state civil office created by the legislature during such term.

Section 9. Compensation; allowances.—Each legislator shall receive compensation, payable monthly, and travel and per diem allowances as provided by law.

Section 10. Organization; officers.—Each house shall be the sole judge of the qualifications and elections of its members. After each regular biennial general election each house, independent of the other, shall convene at such time and place in the state as may be designated by a majority of the written votes of its members filed with the secretary of state within ten days after such election, shall elect a permanent presiding officer who shall be designated in the senate as President of the Senate and in the house as Speaker of the House of Representatives, and may designate other officers and fix its rules of procedure, but shall transact no other legislative business. At its organization session or at such other time when in session as it shall determine, each house shall elect such other officers as it may deem necessary and the Senate shall designate a Secretary to serve at its pleasure and the House of Representatives shall designate a Chief Clerk to serve at its pleasure; and the legislature may designate an auditor, to serve at its pleasure, to post-audit state accounts and any others prescribed by law.

Each house of the legislature shall provide a liaison representative to the budgeting authority. He shall be responsible to his appointive house only, shall have access to all records and information available to the budgeting authority, and may sit with it at any time.

Section 11. Procedure; adjournment; open doors, journal; discipline; compelling attendance.—Except as provided herein, each house shall determine its rules of procedure. Neither house may adjourn for more than three days without the consent of the other. The senate may close its doors to the public while sitting in executive session. Other sessions of each house shall be public. Each house shall keep and publish a journal of its proceedings, in which the yeas and nays of the members on any question shall be entered upon request of five members present. Each house may punish a member for contempt and by vote of two-thirds of the membership may expel him. A majority of the members elected to each house shall constitute a quorum, but less than a quorum may adjourn from day to day, compel attendance of absent members, and prescribe penalties for failure to attend.

Section 12. Attendance of witnesses; production of evidence; contempt and penalties.—Each house may when in session compel attendance of witnesses and production of public and private documents and other evidence upon any matter under investigation before it or any of its committees, and may punish by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment not exceeding ninety days any person not a member who has been guilty of disorderly or contemptuous conduct in its presence or has refused to obey its lawful summons or to answer lawful questions. For making investigations between sessions either house of the legislature may confer upon an interim committee of its members the power to subpoena witnesses and require production of documents. Obedience to the process of an interim committee and the giving of testimony before it may be enforced by the circuit court as may be provided by law. Contempt of an interim committee may be defined and its punishment fixed by law.

No person shall at the same time hold or perform the functions of more than one office under the government of this state; provided, notaries public and officers of the state militia may be elected or appointed to fill any office.

Section 14. Form of bill; one subject; title; amendment; enacting clause.—Every law shall embrace but one subject and matter properly connected therewith, which subject shall be briefly expressed in the title. No law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title only. Laws to revise or amend shall set out in full the revised act or amended section, subsection, or paragraph. The enacting clause of every law shall read: "Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Florida:—"

Section 15. Passage of bills.—Any bill may originate in either house and after passage in one may be amended in the other. In each house it shall be read on three separate days unless two-thirds of the members present waive this rule. Its first reading shall be by title only unless one-third of the members present order it read in full. Its second reading shall be in full unless two-thirds of the members present order it read by title only. Its third reading shall be in full, unless it is a general revision of the entire laws, in which instance two-thirds of the members present may order it read by title only. Passage of a bill shall require a majority vote of the members present in each house. On final passage the vote in each house shall be taken by yeas and nays and entered on its journal. Every bill or joint resolution upon passage shall be signed by the presiding officers of the respective houses and by the secretary of the senate and the chief clerk of the house of representatives.

The chief justice or an associate justice designated by him shall preside at the trial unless the chief justice is on trial, in which event the governor shall preside. Judgment shall extend only to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of honor, trust, or profit under the state, and shall not affect the criminal or civil liability of the convicted officer.
