I. SUMMARY:

HB 1633 restores the rulemaking authority of the Department of Children and Family Services with respect to Medicaid eligibility determinations and clarifies responsibilities.

During the 1999 Legislative Session, a revisor's bill replaced the word "department," in s. 409.919, F.S., referring to the Department of Children and Families (DCF), with the word "Agency," referring to the Agency for Health Care Administration (AHCA). The section provides statutory authority for rulemaking in the Medicaid program which is under AHCA as the state agency responsible for Medicaid. The unintended result of this changed wording was to remove DCF's rulemaking authority for Medicaid eligibility determinations.

According to the department, there will be a significant economic impact to the department if the bill is not passed. For every policy made by the department for which it lacks rulemaking authority, the department is subject to litigation by any individual affected by the policy. The department has issued 33 Medicaid-related program memorandums since July 1, 1999. Each policy memorandum represents a potential litigation risk for the department.

The act takes effect upon becoming a law.

B. PRESENT SITUATION:

During the 1999 Legislative Session, a revisor's bill replaced the word "department," which referred to the Department of Children and Families (DCF), with the word "Agency," which referred to the Agency for Health Care Administration (AHCA), in s. 409.919, F.S. Section 409.919, F.S., provides statutory authority for rulemaking in the Medicaid program. Since AHCA is the state agency responsible for Medicaid, this appeared to be a simple, noncontroversial change. However, the result of this changed wording was to remove DCF's rulemaking authority for Medicaid eligibility determinations.

Through interagency agreement since AHCA was created, AHCA and DCF have agreed that DCF perform Medicaid eligibility determinations. Prior to the 1999 revisor's amendment to s. 409.919, F.S., DCF had rulemaking authority for any rules necessary to conduct the Medicaid eligibility determination process, and DCF has promulgated 16 Medicaid-specific and several other partially Medicaid-related rules under that authority in the intervening years.

The Department of Children and Families is currently involved in litigation about Medicaid-related disability determinations (Spencer v. Bush) and must have rulemaking authority for any policy changes stemming from this suit. Discussion about policy changes with plaintiffs is ongoing. Some agreements have been reached, and, as a result, policy statements have been issued that must be supported in rule. Without the proper rulemaking authority as provided in this draft bill, any necessary rule amendments stemming from this suit cannot be promulgated.

C. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Clarifies responsibilities and restores rulemaking authority of the Department of Children and Family Services with respect to Medicaid eligibility determinations.

Designates the Department of Children and Family Services as being responsible for Medicaid eligibility determinations, including policies and rules. Also designates the department as being responsible for agreements with the Social Security Administration for Medicaid eligibility determinations for supplemental security income recipients.

Section 3. Amends section 409.903, F.S., relating to mandatory payments for eligible persons.

Substitutes Department of Children and Family Services or Social Security Administration for the word "agency."

Section 4. Amends section 409.919, F.S., relating to rules.

Requires the department to adopt rules to comply with ss. 409.901-409.904, F.S., and s. 409.906, F.S., and other provisions necessary for Medicaid eligibility determination.
