I. Summary:

The bill designates September 11th of each year as “Florida Rescue Workers’ Day” to recognize the sacrifices made by Florida rescue workers in the face of the unthinkable tragedy that occurred on September 11, 2001.

This bill creates a new undesignated section of Florida Law.

II. Present Situation:

On September 11, 2001, America suffered its greatest loss of life on American soil since the Civil War when four airplanes, hijacked by terrorists, attacked the World Trade Center and Pentagon, and crashed in Pennsylvania. Immediately following this tragedy, hundreds of Florida law enforcement officers, firefighters, search and rescue personnel, and other citizens traveled to New York City and Washington D.C. to assist in the recovery efforts. These volunteers included the 72-member Florida Urban Search and Rescue Task Force headquartered in Miami-Dade County, employees from Miami-Dade County’s Office of Emergency Management, and Red Cross workers, many of whom worked twelve-hour shifts for seven or more consecutive days at a time.¹

During the 2001 Special Session B, the Florida Senate adopted a resolution that honored the dedication of rescue workers from across America, and expressed the state’s gratitude to those workers, in particular to those from Florida who traveled to New York City, Washington D.C., and Pennsylvania. Further, the resolution designated September 11th of each year as “Florida Rescue Workers’ Day.”²

Chapter 683, F.S., relates to legal holidays and special observances. Section 683.01, F.S., designates 21 legal holidays,³ while other provisions in ss. 683.04-683.325, F.S., designate special observances⁴ or explain the significance of certain legal holidays.⁵ Additionally, legal holidays for specific counties in the state are listed in the chapter.⁶ Section 683.01, F.S., does not authorize state offices to be closed, nor does it authorize the designated days as paid holidays for state employees. The nine holidays that are paid holidays for state employees are listed in s. 110.117, F.S.⁷

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Section 1 of the bill creates a new section of law to recognize the sacrifices made by Florida rescue workers in the face of unthinkable tragedy by designating September 11th of each year as “Florida Rescue Workers’ Day.”

Section 2 provides that this act shall take effect upon becoming a law.
